TERRI STEEB GRONAU, VICE PRESIDENT OF DIVISION II

DII stems the tides of change

During my 20-year association with Division II governance, I’ve witnessed the ebb and flow of change. And I can say for certain — and I’m sure anyone reading this will agree — that we’ve been at high tide for the past three years.

The pandemic rattled us in 2019–20 and 2020–21. The overhaul of the NCAA constitution and subsequent charge for each division to revise its rules and policies in 2021–22 brought another wave.

Through it all, Division II has remained strong, and it’s all due to one key factor – our membership. Division II always has been known for being on the cutting edge of initiatives (the sport festivals, our branding and marketing strategies, the DII U educational platform, and the way we integrate the DII SAAC in decision-making are examples), and that’s because of the collective energy within our membership to want to be out front. Innovations don’t emerge without a concerted effort from individuals committed to enabling our membership to offer student-athletes a balanced, rewarding, memorable and productive collegiate experience that will positively impact the rest of their lives.

We saw our resolve during the COVID years. Despite a series of canceled championships and scheduling nightmares, Division II worked through bracket reductions to retain championships in 2021 for winter and spring sports and then resume at full capacity in the fall of that year and throughout all of 2022.

We heard our voice during the constitutional crisis. Our five representatives on the Constitution Committee were persuasive in proclaiming the value of the Division II model, retaining our autonomy and the resources we deserve.

And now during this past year we witnessed the collaboration and camaraderie from our membership that kept us strong as change continued to swirl around us. Our 28-member Implementation Committee, including the five student-athlete representatives, was masterful in quickly but thoroughly working together – both as a group and in tandem with the membership – to bring forward 40 recommendations for action in a seven-month period. Many of those comprise the agenda for our business session at this Convention.

Implementation Committee members skillfully tackled a monumental charge, establishing topic-specific subcommittees that worked separately and together as necessary to develop concepts that were vetted both within the full committee and the membership through multiple surveys and conversations to produce the final slate of recommendations.

The leadership from co-chairs Debbie Ford, chancellor at Wisconsin-Parkside, and Bill LaForge, president at Delta State, was exemplary. The camaraderie among members was palpable. The thought that went into the work was bold yet practical. This group was so impressive that we’ve devoted the last third of this yearbook to their work (see page 44).

The spirit of collaboration I witnessed with the Implementation Committee is a good example of what has bound the division together for almost half a century. And we'll need more of that as we enter into our 50th anniversary year as a division, because while the Implementation Committee reached closure on many items, others were referred back into the governance structure, including deep dives into our championships framework, governing bylaws, the membership process and institutional engagement efforts to replace the ISSG.

Some of these items will be detailed and could represent more change for the division, but with our history of collaboration, Division II is able to be innovative with the understanding that if something doesn’t produce the desired outcomes it can be modified.

Yes, it’s still high tide for change – for Division II and the Association overall – and we must continue focusing on our values and what the student-athlete experience means to Division II, and to embrace creativity and innovation to make a meaningful impact for the future.

After competing fiercely in the 285-lb. championship match, Kutztown’s Andrew Dunn (left) and Darrell Mason of Minnesota State Mankato embrace in a display of sportsmanship. Mason’s victory capped a 22-0 season and earned him Outstanding Wrestler honors for the championships.

Adams State’s Noah Hermosillo (right) gains the upper hand on Sam Turner of Nebraska-Kearney in the 149-lb. final. Hermosillo went on to win the match – one of three Grizzlies grapplers to do so during the 2022 Division II Wrestling Championships – but Turner’s Lopers took their fourth team title after finishing second last year by just 1.5 points.

CHAMPIONSHIPS
The Mercyhurst eights crew clinched the team title in one of the tightest races in championship history. With 500 meters remaining, Mercyhurst, Western Washington and Thomas Jefferson were all within a second of each other. Ultimately the race wasn’t decided until the final stroke as Mercyhurst nudged Western Washington by just .03 of a second. "Today was a special day and one that I will never forget," said Mercyhurst Director of Rowing Adrian Spracklen. "Western Washington gave us all we could handle, and I tip my hat to them — what a race that final was."

IT’S FESTIVAL TIME AGAIN!

Division II conducted its 12th National Championships Festival Nov. 30–Dec. 3 in Seattle for fall sports (men’s and women’s cross country, field hockey, men’s and women’s soccer, and women’s volleyball). This was the fifth fall sports festival; the others being in 2006, 2010, 2014 and 2018. It also was the first festival to be held since 2018, as those previously scheduled in 2020 (spring sports) and 2021 (winter sports) were canceled due to the pandemic.

As is customary at the festivals, participants enjoyed opening ceremonies, community engagement activities and the camaraderie that comes with having an Olympic Village-type atmosphere.

COMMITTEE HIGHLIGHTS FROM 2022

- Per a referral from the Division II Implementation Committee, the Championships Committee began exploring a championships structure that sets a uniform minimum sponsorship requirement to establish/maintain a Division II championship in men’s and women’s sports (with a five-year grace period if a sport falls below the minimum), continues to offer the best access ratio among divisions, and grants automatic qualification privileges to a championship once minimum sponsorship is reached.

- Completed a draft that combines Bylaws 18 and 31 to create a significantly revised overarching championships bylaw that moves several existing bylaws to policy.

- Established a regionalization subcommittee to consider changes to the division’s championship model concerning regionalization bracketing policies with the goal of reducing first-round conference matchups and maintaining fiscal responsibility.

- Approved a new seven-day format for the Division II Softball Championship that allows for additional necessary rest and recovery for participating student-athletes, including an off day for teams that lose the first day as well as a day off prior to the start of the championship series.

- Conducted a review of bench sizes in team sports and increased numbers as requested by sport committees to enhance the student-athlete experience at championships.

- Extended the neutrality pilot for all sports in 2022–23.

- Began the 2024-27 triennial budget process with sport committees.

- Per the referral from the Division II Implementation Committee, began reviewing the two-year college transfer requirements and progress-toward-degree requirements in current Bylaw 14.

- Reviewed the recommendation from the Standardized Test Task Force and supported the elimination of the ACT/SAT test score from DII initial-eligibility requirements.

- Recommended the Division II Management Council waive the current Division II Degree-Completion Award requirements due to COVID extensions so student-athletes may participate in their last season during the 2023-24 academic year and still receive the award.

Civic engagement takes effect

On Nov. 8, Election Day in the United States, all Division II schools for the first time were required to take a day off from athletics activities such as games and practices as a result of legislation Division II schools adopted at the 2022 NCAA Convention specifying that countable athletically related activities be prohibited on the first Tuesday after Nov. 1 every year.

The goal of the legislation was to increase opportunities for student-athletes to participate in civic engagement activities such as voting and community service. That was evidenced this year as Division II schools promoted various activities that put their student-athletes once again at the forefront of positive change.

The legislation came directly from the voice of student-athletes, specifically the Division II Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, which initially recommended it.

“This legislation allows student-athletes to perform their civic duties, such as voting, volunteering and community engagement,” Kate Pigsley, a former field hockey player at Southern New Hampshire University and member of the Division II SAAC, said during last year’s Division II business session. “It's important to emphasize that this full day devoted for civic engagement goes beyond just having time to vote. In addition, student-athletes will be able to amplify their voice at congressional, local and state elections, and have time to give back to the community through engagement activities.”

For several Division II schools, including Pigsley’s, this year’s recognition of Election Day was a continuation of the past two years. Three Division II conferences — the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, the Northeast-10 Conference and the California Collegiate Athletic Association — had similar legislation in place before the 2020 election.

Experiences from members of those conferences were positive and indicated a desire to build it into something bigger than a one-day pause in athletics activity.

“I hope the attention that this day provides us is an opportunity to actually kick-start a conversation that probably needs to be happening throughout the whole year,” said Julie Ruppert, NE10 commissioner.
GOVERNANCE AND NEWS

NCAA names Charlie Baker as new president

Massachusetts Governor Charlie Baker was appointed in December to serve as the next NCAA president, assuming the role effective March 2023.

Governor Baker succeeds Mark Emmert, who will remain in a consultant role through June 2023. Emmert took office November 1, 2010, succeeding interim president Jim Isch, who served for one year following the passing of Myles Brand, who had been NCAA president since 2002. Emmert was president of the University of Washington from 2004 to 2010 and chancellor at Louisiana State University from 1999 to 2004.

A former basketball student-athlete at Harvard University, Governor Baker is credited with bringing bipartisan leadership to the state, successfully guiding Massachusetts through an exceptionally turbulent period for government officials. In addition to his two terms as governor, he brings decades of experience spearheading transformations at high profile institutions in the private and public sectors.

Governor Baker upon his appointment acknowledged that the NCAA is confronting complex and significant challenges, but that the opportunities college athletics provide to so many students is “more than worth the challenge.”

“The NCAA is an organization that impacts millions of families and countless communities across this country every day,” Governor Baker said. “I am eager to ensure the competitions we all love to follow are there for generations to come. Over the coming months, I will begin working with student-athletes and NCAA members as we modernize college sports to suit today’s world, while preserving its essential value.”

Baylor University President Linda Livingstone, the chair of the NCAA Board of Governors who helmed the presidential search committee, praised Governor Baker for his ability to bridge divides and build bipartisan consensus, taking on complex challenges in innovative and effective ways.

“As a former student-athlete himself, husband to a former college gymnast, and father to two former college football players, Governor Baker is deeply committed to our student-athletes and enhancing their collegiate experience,” President Livingstone said. “These skills and perspective will be invaluable as we work with policymakers to build a sustainable model for the future of college athletics.”

Division II grad rates receive high marks again

The national four-year Academic Success Rate average remained at 76%, according to the most recent data. Overall Division II student-athlete graduation rates and many subgroup rates are at or near their highest-ever levels.

Notable single-class student-athlete increases in ASR over the 16 years of calculating this rate in Division II include overall (from 69% to 77%), Black women (from 61% to 79%), Hispanic/Latinx men (48% to 67%) and Hispanic/Latinx women (63% to 78%).

In addition, there has been a notable increase in ASR for two-year transfer student-athletes over the past 10 years (from 57% to 74%).

The NCAA developed the Division II ASR at the request of college and university presidents who believed the federal graduation rate was flawed. Division II’s ASR data includes student-athletes who transfer into a school and removes student-athletes who left the school in good academic standing. In addition, given the partial-scholarship financial aid model of Division II, the ASR data includes student-athletes not on athletically related financial aid. The result is that ASR captures more than 30,000 nonscholarship student-athletes who were enrolled in the four years covered in the most recent data.

Even when using the less-inclusive federal rate, Division II student-athletes outperform the general student body by 8 percentage points. The federal rates for Division II student-athletes and the student body both held steady, with the student-athlete rate at 60% and the general student body at 52%.

New NCAA Board of Governors begins its work

The reconstituted NCAA Board of Governors met August 2 for the first time, choosing Baylor University President Linda Livingstone as chair. Madeleine McKenna, a former volleyball student-athlete at California University of Pennsylvania and Division II Student-Athlete Advisory Committee member, was elected as the student-athlete voting member.

The new board, created as a result of the new NCAA Constitution adopted in January 2022, includes nine voting members and seven nonvoting ex officio members. All three divisions are represented, including among the three graduated student-athletes represented on the board. In addition to McKenna, Division II is represented by Jim Johnson, director of athletics at Pittsburg State University and chair of the Division II Management Council through the 2023 Convention, and Minot State University President Steve Shirley, chair of the Division II Presidents Council.

NCAA celebrating the 50th anniversary of Title IX

The NCAA began its “Title IX at 50” celebration during the 2022 NCAA Convention in Indianapolis. The celebration commemorates the anniversary of the landmark federal law signed in 1972 that prohibits gender discrimination in educational programs and activities receiving federal financial assistance.

The Association will host programs, tributes and other activities through spring 2023, alongside member schools who also are recognizing the anniversary. The efforts will culminate at the 2023 Women’s Final Four in Dallas, where Divisions I, II and III will hold their women’s basketball championships.

In addition to the creation of a special Title IX at 50 logo, a dedicated website is available at ncaa.org/titleix50, which includes a membership tool kit that provides ideas and suggestions on how schools and conferences can celebrate on their campuses and in their communities. Various materials and stories also will be archived on the site, along with the Title IX at 50 report that will detail progress made over the years and where additional work needs to be done. The report will be complete by early spring.

Title IX is part of the Education Amendments of 1972 and was signed into law June 23. It states: “No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.”

Communications efforts will include social media features, resource materials, dedicated stories and Title IX membership spotlights. Members also will be asked to share their celebration initiatives for the Title IX at 50 website as part of the anniversary promotion.

Dena Freeman-Patton honored as a Champion of Diversity and Inclusion

Dena Freeman-Patton, formerly the associate vice president and director of athletics at California State University, Dominguez Hills, was one of the individuals in 2021 to be recognized by the NCAA office of inclusion and the NCAA Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee (MOIC) as a Champion of Diversity and Inclusion for her work in supporting ethnic minorities and other underrepresented groups and individuals.

Freeman-Patton was honored while serving as the AD at Cal State Dominguez Hills but she was hired as vice president and director for intercollegiate athletics at Division I Morgan State University on June 1.

Freeman-Patton served on the MOIC for four years, including one year as vice chair and one as chair of the committee. She was instrumental in creating legislation for the addition of an athletics diversity and inclusion designee to support the Presidential Pledge and Commitment to Promoting Diversity and Gender Equity in Intercollegiate Athletics. Freeman-Patton has also been a member of the board of directors for the Minority Opportunities Athletic Association. As associate vice president and director of athletics at Cal State Dominguez Hills, she continued to advocate for these causes behind the scenes and supports the hiring of more ethnic minority senior administrators and head coaches.
Make Game Day Yours is making a difference

Division II officially launched the Make Game Day Yours initiative at the 2022 NCAA Convention to encourage a more positive game environment and provide excellent customer service at the division's athletics events across the country. The initiative was created through a partnership with the Disney Institute, Disney’s professional development and leadership training wing.

Since February 2021, the Disney Institute and a working group of 21 Division II administrators, faculty and student-athletes have worked together to create a baseline of guest service training and game environment standards for administrators and game managers to promote appropriate fan behavior at Division II events. Division III formed a similar partnership with the Disney Institute in 2016 and successfully launched its Gameday the DIII Way initiative.

Three regional training sessions took place in 2022, and another five will be held in 2023 to allow all Division II conferences and schools an opportunity to learn more about this initiative. Those who receive facilitator training from these regional workshops will be equipped with the tools to train their peers in a program developed by the working group and Disney Institute.

The Division II initiative focuses on four service standards, prioritized in the following order:

- Safety: Providing an environment for the health and well-being of our student-athletes and all others.
- Responsiveness: Anticipating and effectively addressing situations that arise.
- Dignity: Demonstrating respect and value for others.
- Experience: Creating a positive atmosphere.

At the recommendation of the Identity Subcommittee of the Division II Management Council, the initiative also features a tool to assist administrators in situations that involve conflict resolution with fans. The tool centers on the acronym LEAD2:

- Listen
- Empathize
- Apologize
- Decide
- Deliver

Division II University modules also will be designed for each school and conference office to evaluate, learn and improve game environment and customer service standards, with a focus on encouraging and supporting appropriate fan behavior. The modules will launch in early 2023.

“This training and initiative not only provided us with knowledge to take our game day operations to the next level but also provided us with the tools for implementing the initiative and training our staff to make it our own.”

NICOLE TIBBE, Director of Athletics Facilities and Operations, Davenport University

“I appreciated how much time was spent on training us to train others on our campus, and I am excited about implementing it for our game day experiences at William Jewell. This is a great initiative, and I would highly recommend it.”

TOM EISENHAUER, Director of Athletics, William Jewell College

“The skills we learned require only positive, planned action that will improve so much more about our operations than just game day. The skills we are now equipped to teach our staff and volunteers lend themselves well to Division II’s commitment to education and service.”

GWENDOLYN BUCHHOP, Assistant Athletics Director for Media and Community Relations, Hillsdale College
HONORS AND AWARDS

Finalists named for NCAA Woman of the Year

Established in 1991 and now in its 32nd year, which happens to coincide with the 50th anniversary of Title IX, the NCAA Woman of the Year award recognizes female student-athletes who have exhausted their eligibility and distinguished themselves in their community, athletics and academics throughout their college careers.

Typically, the overall winner is revealed in this publication, but this year for the first time in the award’s history, the Top 30 honorees will be celebrated and the Woman of the Year will be named at the NCAA Convention.

A total of 127 nominees this year came from Division II colleges and universities, part of the 577 nominations from all NCAA schools. From that pool, conferences selected their own recipients (39 in all from Division II; conferences are permitted to recognize two female student-athletes if at least one of them is an international student-athlete or student-athlete of color).

The Woman of the Year Selection Committee selected 10 student-athletes from each division to determine the Top 30 honorees, from which nine finalists were named (three from each division).

Minnesota Duluth earns 2022 Award of Excellence

At Minnesota Duluth, it's common to see green bandanas on backpacks across campus. At a school whose colors are maroon and gold, the bandanas are meant to stand out.

As part of the Green Bandana Project that Minnesota Duluth's Student-Athlete Advisory Committee launched in 2019, the bandanas signify that those who display them are mental health advocates. The project has continued to grow through partnerships Minnesota Duluth's SAAC has made with campus counseling services, community mental health professionals and other student groups with similar missions. These partnerships culminated with the launch of Mental Health Awareness Games in 2020-21 that included teams wearing mental health T-shirts and videos with awareness-driven messaging being shared at the games, on social media and through broadcast streams.

These games continued for every spring sport in 2021 and led Minnesota Duluth to plan an awareness game for every Bulldog team for the 2021-22 academic year. That helped earn Minnesota Duluth the 2022 Division II Award of Excellence, announced during the division's business session at the NCAA Convention in Indianapolis.

This is the ninth year Division II has issued the Award of Excellence to recognize schools for their community and campus engagement initiatives. Schools are selected by the Division II Student-Athlete Advisory Committee based on events over the past year that exemplify the Division II philosophy, community engagement and student-athlete leadership.

"I am extremely proud of our student-athletes for the positive impact they have made on our campus and beyond through their mental health awareness advocacy efforts. This award reflects their tremendous work," said Lynn Black, chancellor at Minnesota Duluth. "Their passion, collaboration and persistence to make a difference is truly inspiring. It's vital on a campus and in society that those who are struggling with mental health feel supported, and our student-athletes have helped our Bulldog community make immense strides in this space."

As the winner of the award, the school received $2,500 to use toward future community engagement efforts.

Wingate University and the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association shared runner-up honors for the Award of Excellence out of 28 finalists named. Both Wingate and the CIAA will receive $1,250 for their efforts.

In 2021, Wingate hosted its 28th annual United Way Day of Caring. This event connected 311 volunteers, including 273 student-athletes and coaches, with the local community through assisting with household maintenance for people in need.

The CIAA, in response to the cancellation of its men’s and women’s basketball championships, held Virtual Vibe: Tournament Edition. The event connected student-athletes, fans and the Baltimore community through education sessions, concerts, community engagement opportunities and a career expo. This weeklong event included ample resources and support for individuals who normally attend the tournament.

Strategic Alliance Matching Grants

Entering its 23rd cycle, the Division II Strategic Alliance Matching Grant is a program through which the NCAA funds recipients at 75 percent of the proposed salary and benefits for the first year, 50 percent for the second year and 25 percent for the third year to help create full-time senior-level administrative positions or enhance current positions. The NCAA also provides recipients with $12,500 of professional development and technology funding during the first three years. The following institutions and conferences were selected to receive the grants for 2022-23:

Barton College, Assistant Athletics Director of Student-Athlete Growth and Internal Operations

Catawba College, Deputy Director of Athletics

Palm Beach Atlantic University, Assistant Director of Compliance and Student-Athlete Services

Purdue University Northwest, Assistant Director for Student Success

University of Indianapolis, Assistant Director of Athletics Director for NCAA Compliance

Ethnic Minorities and Women’s Internship Grants

These are one-year grants that provide funding for full-time, entry-level administrative positions. The NCAA provides $30,000 to support the salary of the hired intern and $3,000 in professional development funding. The following institutions and conferences were selected to receive the grants for 2022-23:

Converse University, Athletics Administration Intern

Ferris State University, Academic Support Counselor for Intercollegiate Athletics

Saginaw Valley State University, Athletics Development Coordinator

The University of Texas at Tyler, Athletics Administration Intern

Wayne State College (Nebraska), Assistant Compliance Coordinator
Minot State professor to be honored

The NCAA Division II Student-Athlete Advisory Committee selected Dean Frantsvog from Minot State University as the recipient of the 2022 Dr. Dave Pariser Faculty Mentor Award.

The Dr. Dave Pariser Faculty Mentor Award is named after a Bellarmine University physical therapy professor who died in 2013 and recognizes faculty members at Division II institutions for their dedication to supporting and mentoring student-athletes, as well as their commitment to Division II student-athletes’ lifelong learning, competition and well-being.

Frantsvog, who died in August after a battle with cancer, will be honored posthumously at the 2023 NCAA Convention in San Antonio. The 1997 Minot State graduate was a business law professor in Minot State’s College of Business over the past 18 years and was inducted into the Minot State Athletics Hall of Fame in October.

Frantsvog served as Minot State’s first FAR, beginning in 2010 until 2022. During his years of service, he was honored as the Minot State University Professor of the Year in 2018, the MSU Board of Regents Faculty Achievement Award in 2012, the MSU Golden Award for Young Alumni in 2011, and the MSU Vision 2013 Merit Award.

“Dean Frantsvog’s dedication to student-athletes and values of Division II left an evident impact on the Minot State community,” said Division II SAAC member and Mars Hill University softball player Maggie Langhein. “The contributions that he made not only represented Division II values but allowed for student-athletes to grow holistically both in and outside of their sport.”

Among his many contributions in his support of student-athletes was leading the development of a state-of-the-art study space within the Minot State athletics facility reserved for student-athletes.

“Dean created a safe space for our student-athletes to study, have access to state-of-the-art technology and peer tutoring services, but most importantly, the Dean Frantsvog Academic Success Center provides a space for our student-athletes to be successful students and excel in the classroom,” said Minot State Senior Woman Administrator Madeline Schorlemmer, who submitted the nomination materials. “His passion for student-athletes’ success both in the classroom and their sport was evident throughout his entire career at Minot State.”

Coaching Enhancement Grants

These grants help member schools create full-time assistant coaching positions in any of the 24 NCAA-sponsored sports. The NCAA provides $25,000 in funding in the first year, $15,000 in the second year and $8,000 in the third year. The school is required to supplement the funding, as well as commit to funding the position in full for the fourth and fifth years. Additionally, the NCAA provides $1,200 during each of the first three years of the grant toward professional development opportunities for the hired coach. The following institutions and conferences were selected to receive the grants for 2022-23:

Kutztown University of Pennsylvania, Assistant Field Hockey Coach

Minnesota State University Mankato, Assistant Softball Coach / Academic Advisor

Northwest Nazarene University, Assistant Volleyball Coach

Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania, Head Strength and Conditioning Coach / Sport Nutritionist

Trevecca Nazarene University, Assistant Coach for Men’s and Women’s Track and Field

Postgraduate Scholarship Recipients

Each sports season, there are 29 scholarships available for men and 29 scholarships available for women for use in an accredited graduate program. The following includes Division II awardees for winter and spring sports in 2022, and for fall sports in 2021, since awardees for fall sports in 2022 had yet to be announced by press time.

A record 44 Division II member schools received the Presidents’ Award for Academic Excellence in 2022. The award honors Division II schools that have achieved an Academic Success Rate of 90% or higher.

Bentley University, Biola University and Saint Michael’s College were the top performers in the division, earning an ASR of 99%. Hillsdale College (98%), Thomas Jefferson University (97%) and Trevecca Nazarene University (97%) rounded out the top six.

The Northeast-10 Conference led the division with seven athletics programs achieving scores of 90% or more, followed by the Central Atlantic Collegiate and Great Lakes Valley Conferences with five.

“The Presidents’ Award for Academic Excellence recognizes Division II member schools for their commitment to a balanced college experience that supports the academic success of college athletes,” said Steven Shirley, president of Minot State University and chair of the Division II Presidents Council. “It is an honor to recognize this many Division II schools and their student-athletes for their hard work and dedication to achieving such academic excellence.”

The Division II ASR includes transfers into a school in the calculation and removes transfers out who left school while academically eligible. The ASR also includes the more than 30,000 nonscholarship student-athletes who were enrolled in the four years covered in the most recent data.

Even when using the less-inclusive federal graduation rate, student-athletes are outperforming their peers in the general student population by 8%. For Division II student-athletes, the federal rate is 60%, while the general student body federal rate is 52%.

This is the 12th year the award has been given. Eight schools have earned the award every year: Assumption University, Bentley University, Eckerd College, Hillsdale University, Rockhurst University, Rollins College, Saint Michael’s College, and Seattle Pacific University.

How Division II took the next bold step into its future

This coming August will mark the golden anniversary of the establishment of the three NCAA divisions as we know them. Before 1973 there were just two – the University and College Divisions, which loosely divided the larger schools from the smaller ones with not many other distinguishing characteristics in between.

When the NCAA held a special convention in August 1973 to establish its divisional triumvirate, Division II would provide a historic balance for members wanting to be in the athletics scholarship game but not so devoted to sports that it consumed the student-athlete experience. These members also wanted to keep their expenses in check to align more with their financial commitment to their educational missions and not pursue athletics as a self-sufficient endeavor.

In the 49.5 years between then and now, Division II has undergone its share of change, but its commitment to a balanced experience – certainly for student-athletes but also for athletics itself within the construct of the institution – remains as its ultimate distinction and part of a branding campaign that defines Division II not as a middle division and not as being neither Division I nor Division III, but uniquely as a collection of institutions that encourage student-athletes to achieve their highest athletics goals without neglecting all the rest of the benefits of being a college student on a vibrant campus with ample opportunities to learn, develop and prepare for success in whatever lies ahead.
There were significant benchmarks along the way. Division II benefited from the federated governance adopted in 1997 that gave each division more autonomy over its affairs, and Division II’s brand evolved through the “I Chose” years in the mid-2000s into the current “Make It Yours” slogan that puts student-athletes more in command of their own experiences.

Then came the more seismic shifts — the COVID-19 pandemic in 2019 that canceled championships and altered how student-athletes experienced college altogether, followed by a subsequent tumultuous period during which (1) in lieu of a unified federal approach, differing state laws went into effect regarding student-athlete name, image and likeness; and (2) the U.S. Supreme Court issued its unanimous decision in the Alston case that questioned the NCAA’s ability to self-govern.

Additionally, calls for greater representation and equity from both inside and outside the enterprise compounded the concern that the NCAA’s collegiate model that had been in place for more than a century could no longer maintain its status quo.

In late July 2021, the NCAA Board of Governors announced that a special convention would be convened in November to rework the NCAA constitution, with action to be taken at the NCAA’s annual Convention in January.

In August 2021, the Board of Governors appointed a 28-member Constitution Committee, featuring presidents, commissioners, athletics directors and student-athletes from Divisions I, II and III, and independent members of the NCAA Board of Governors, to frame the new constitution. The Division II representatives were California State University, Chico President Gayle Hutchinson; Pittsburg State University Athletics Director Jim Johnson; California University of Pennsylvania Volleyball Student-Athlete Madeleine McKenna; Northeast-10 Conference Commissioner Julie Ruppert; and Lincoln University of Pennsylvania Athletics Director Harry Stinson III.

In October 2021, and after a series of initial Constitution Committee meetings, it became clear that while ratification of a new constitution in January remained the essential first step in the process of transforming the governance of the NCAA, there also must be a second step, which would require each division to review its rules to assure that changes are consistent with the principles agreed upon in the new constitution.

That led to the Division II Administrative Committee on December 1, 2021, appointing a 28-member Implementation Committee co-chaired by University of Wisconsin-Parkside Chancellor Debbie Ford and Delta State University President William LaForge to review the division’s rules and policies and make recommendations to ensure that changes are consistent with the principles agreed upon in the new constitution.

The committee included one representative from all 23 Division II conferences and five current and former student-athletes. All five members who served on the Constitution Committee were on the Implementation Committee. Steven Shirley, president at Minot State University and chair of the Division II Presidents Council, served as an ex-officio member.

The Implementation Committee held an orientation meeting in January 2022 and then met in person February 7–8 and hit the ground running, agreeing quickly on several recommendations and others for which to seek feedback via a membership survey. The group conducted several videoconferences and another in-person meeting in May before finalizing recommendations during a June 30 videoconference for the Division II Management Council and Division II Presidents Council to consider during their summer 2022 meetings.

To accomplish its work, the Implementation Committee established six topic-specific subcommittees to develop concepts and recommendations:

- Budget
- Championships
- Enforcement and Infractions Process
- Governance
- Legislative Process and Compliance
- Membership
SUMMARY OF ITEMS BY PRIORITY

PRIORITY 1 ITEMS

Budget Subcommittee: Assess Division II distributions to the membership to ensure the distributions are meeting the needs of conferences, institutions, and student-athletes. Also, assess recommendations of the Implementation Committee that may have a budget impact.

Championships Subcommittee: Review NCAA Bylaws 18 and 31 related to national championships to determine what should remain as legislation and what can be moved to championships policy. Work with Divisions I and III on National Collegiate Championships, where appropriate. Outcomes from this review may be directed to the Division II Championships Committee for further review and discussion.

Enforcement and Infractions Subcommittee: Review Bylaws 19 and 32 related to the enforcement and infractions process to determine what should remain as legislation and what can be moved to policy. Once determined what is legislation and policy, work to combine the bylaws. Finally, review the recommendations made in 2021 by the Division II Enforcement and Infractions Task Force and submit recommendations as appropriate.

Governance Subcommittee: Assess the Division II committee structure to include a review of compositions and duties of the Division II Presidents Council, Management Council, Planning and Finance Committee and other committees within the substructure.

Legislative Process and Compliance Subcommittee: Assess the Division II legislative process to determine ways the process can be streamlined and simplified.

Membership Subcommittee: Assess what is required to be an active Division II institution and conference, including the role of the national office, conferences, and institutions. Also, review current Constitution 3 and Bylaw 20 and determine what is duplicative and how to combine. Finally, monitor membership discussions by Division I and Division III and discuss multi-divisional classification.

PRIORITY 2 AND 3 ITEMS

NOTE: These items may have initial discussions by the Implementation Committee following review and recommendations related to Priority 1 items. However, most are likely to be discussed and reviewed by committees in the governance structure following the completion of work by the Implementation Committee.

Championships Subcommittee: Review legislation and policies of what is required to establish a Division II championship and what new championship opportunities should be considered for Division II student-athletes.

Legislative Process and Compliance Subcommittee: Assess the Division II operating bylaws (e.g., amateurism, recruiting, eligibility, financial aid, awards and benefits, playing and practice seasons) to determine how the legislation can be streamlined and simplified.

Membership Subcommittee: Assess dues paid by schools and conferences. Review requirements for provisional members and assess current membership process to determine the readiness of Division I and Division III members. Assess the current list of emerging sports for women and particularly sports that have not added sponsorship numbers.

Additionally, the work was prioritized as follows:

- Priority 1 – To be completed by August 1, 2022; or legislation sponsored by September 1, 2022, for January 2023 Convention vote; and/or legislation/policy adopted and effective August 1, 2023;
- Priority 2 – Recommendations by spring/summer 2023 for review and consideration; and
- Priority 3 – Discussed and reviewed with TBD action date.

During the June 30 videoconference, the Implementation Committee also agreed to refer several other concepts to existing groups within the Division II governance structure for further work. All in all, the Implementation Committee authored five Convention proposals (including one that modifies the composition and duties of the Presidents Council, Management Council, Planning and Finance Committee, and the Administrative Committee), 31 noncontroversial legislation proposals and three other nonlegislative items, all of which reflect the committee’s mission and commitment to implement significant change to the division’s operating procedures without compromising the values and principles to which Division II members hold true.

Co-Chair Debbie Ford said the Implementation Committee was so productive because of the commitment from volunteer members who rolled up their sleeves and pursued what was in the collective best interests of the division.

“There were no personal agendas, no hidden objectives – only a collaborative spirit to protect and enhance what already has made Division II a distinctive and successful family of members who just want to do what’s right for our student-athletes, coaches and staff,” she said.

“When I think back on it all, our group being called an ‘Implementation Committee’ was spot-on, as we from the very beginning were set on acting, doing, and implementing. We knew the division had already been operating from a position of both philosophical consensus and fiscal strength with our life in the balance philosophy, the bedrock one-institution/one-vote governance process, a strategic and tested budgeting process, and a collective commitment from our 300 member institutions to prepare Division II student-athletes for success in life after college.

“We also knew we had the human resources that Division II has grown to expect over time. Our group of 23 conference representatives and five student-athletes clearly understood the values we share as a division and were quickly able to apply those principles within a new construct that could streamline our operations and enhance experiences for both student-athletes and member institutions alike without compromising any of the benefits we’ve traditionally enjoyed as Division II members. All of the decisions we made were student-centered and future-focused. We weren’t thinking only about 2025 but 2050.”

46 | 2023 DIVISION II YEARBOOK
The final recommendations weren’t just puff pastries, either. They modified the composition and duties of the Presidents Council and Management Council, streamlined the legislative calendar, revamped how institutions evaluate their athletics programs, and perhaps most importantly, enhanced student-athlete involvement in decision making at the campus, conference and national levels.

And while the Implementation Committee completed its charge in August, the work to improve the division continues. Referrals to the governance structure include determining the appropriate minimum sponsorship requirement necessary to create/maintain a Division II championship in a given sport, and the appropriate range of access ratios that in turn determine bracket/field size by sport; reviewing the legislation for institutional control and institutional responsibilities to monitor its athletics programs to determine whether the expectations are fair, accurate and reasonable; and potentially overhauling the Division II Manual by moving many bylaws to policy and excising select current rule that are no longer relevant or essential.

By the time Division II celebrates is 50th Anniversary in August 2023, it will look different — certainly than it did in 1973 but also than it did even in 2021. But don’t be alarmed: The clothes Division II have worn for almost half a century remain in style even with all the alterations. They just fit better now.

NCAA DIVISION II
IMPLEMENTATION COMMITTEE Q&A

After the NCAA Division II Implementation Committee completed its work, members were asked what they thought about the impact this historic review will have on the division in the years to come. Here’s what they said.

What were the most positive and significant overarching outcomes from this review, either in the way it was conducted, what was accomplished, or both?

MICHAELA BOYD, SOCCER STUDENT-ATHLETE (DIVISION II SAAC REPRESENTATIVE), PALM BEACH ATLANTIC UNIVERSITY

One key takeaway about the way the process was conducted was the consistency in keeping student-athletes at the center of decision making. During my time on this committee, I was always encouraged to speak up, especially in subcommittee meetings. Even during discussions that may be considered slightly dense for a student-athlete to take part in, the willingness of the members within my subcommittee to re-explain topics using different language, just for the sake of me giving input, represents to a tee what the priority of this committee was.

CARRIE MICHAELS, SENIOR ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS AND SENIOR WOMAN ADMINISTRATOR, SHIPPENSBURG UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Throughout the review, the committee and membership had ample opportunities to help shape what the division will look like moving forward. Staff and committee members should be proud of the outstanding work and diligence taken to provide meaningful and impactful outcomes. Structures were streamlined, the student-athlete voice was enhanced, and referrals were shared with appropriate committees to analyze for future application.

COLLEEN PERRY KEITH, PRESIDENT, GOLDEY-BEACOM COLLEGE

(1) Collegiality and efficiency. Everyone took their role seriously, came ready to work and was committed to a common goal to improve Division II and make it a model for other divisions. (2) Assembling professionals from all over the country, from conferences with varied needs, and having them work as a unified force with no one looking to advance their college or conference.

CHERRIE WILMOTH, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS FOR INTERNAL OPERATIONS AND COMPLIANCE AND SENIOR WOMAN ADMINISTRATOR, SOUTHEASTERN OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY

One of the most positive and significant outcomes from this review was being a part of a process that brought administrators, faculty and student-athletes from across Division II together to collaborate on what we stand for and what we are moving toward in our division. We continued to examine and expand on what it means to be a member of this division and to focus on our student-athletes.
KEVIN SCHRIVER, FACULTY ATHLETICS REPRESENTATIVE, SOUTHWEST BAPTIST UNIVERSITY

For a while now, as people spoke of “the NCAA,” the whole of the image and brand was keyed on what most people see through the lens of television. And while Division II has worked for the past number of years to establish our brand and philosophy, this review has helped us solidify just exactly what that means. We have been about life in the balance, between academics and athletics. We have been about student-athlete well-being. We have been about the collegiate athletics experience being the best it can be for all involved. This moment was not necessarily our catalyst for creating such a philosophy, but a crystalizing event for Division II — our values, our strengths, and our people.

MICHAELA BOYD, SOCCER STUDENT-ATHLETE (DIVISION II SAAC REPRESENTATIVE), PALM BEACH ATLANTIC UNIVERSITY

The sheer amount of change implemented during an extremely short time impressed me a great deal. I know that this committee’s work will strongly improve the operation of the division and truly allow not only student-athletes but campus and conference administrators a better overall experience. If I had to pick one thing, though, it would be creating and adjusting division-wide committees to add the voice of the student-athlete. That is surely what stands out to me the most.

CARRIE MICHAELS, SENIOR ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS AND SENIOR WOMAN ADMINISTRATOR, SHIPPENSBURG UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

This process allowed us to look at what we are doing, assess whether it is working, review what could be improved, and impact the direction we want to take our division. We found that we do a lot well, but also have areas of opportunity. There was a lot done in a short amount of time, and there is ample work to be done stemming from the referrals established through great conversation and feedback. Operations were reviewed and as a result streamlined and improved. Philosophy was assessed and reaffirmed with enhancements made within the governance structure and for the membership.

TRACI MURPHY, DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, DAEMEN UNIVERSITY

Reworking the Division II Manual to better support the new NCAA Constitution as well as eliminating redundancy reinforces the Division II philosophy and streamlines the legislation so we can better provide for and support student athletes and enhance their experiences. In a sense, we kept it simple — reinforcing the foundation of our division, thereby supporting all that works within Division II, including small staffs and member schools with varied resources, yet we can now move within the legislation to provide the most for student-athletes without separating the haves from the have nots.

MADELEINE McKENNA, FORMER VOLLEYBALL STUDENT-ATHLETE/DII SAAC MEMBER, CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA; CURRENT GRADUATE ASSISTANT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-PARKSIDE

The way Division II was able to mobilize and collaborate is a testament to why we are an attractive membership destination. For institutions outside of the Division II membership, I would want them to see the committee’s recommendations as a product of the culture of our division: empowering, student-athlete centered, collaborative, and driven by a passion for what the DII experience has to offer. Meaningful steps have been taken to streamline our operations, policies, and procedures in order to adapt to the evolving needs of our membership.
Several of the recommendations modified the governance structure at the leadership level. What will be most gained by these changes, and how can you reassure those members who may worry that something has been lost (i.e., representation)?

DEBBIE FORD, CHANCELLOR, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-PARKSIDE

Representation remains with the Management Council and the Council has expanded responsibilities. The newly defined Executive Board will focus on strategic issues and not be bogged down with day-to-day management issues. The new Executive Board will include perspectives from external members and student-athletes. Decision making will be more aligned and nimble.

CHRIS GRAHAM, COMMISSIONER, ROCKY MOUNTAIN ATHLETIC CONFERENCE

Conference representation is a hallmark of Division II and it is maintained, within the improved model, at the most important juncture of the governance process, which is the Management Council. To coincide with that renewed commitment to conference input on all key issues, ManCo’s duties and responsibilities were further elevated, placing the Council at the nexus of all decision making. The Executive Board proposal, to reduce the current Presidents Council membership, replaces a top-heavy, redundant level of governance with a new strategically oriented leadership committee that will receive quarterly feedback from newly developed regional leadership meetings between conferences. These regional discussions with commissioners, presidents, senior woman administrators, Student-Athlete Advisory Committee representatives and others, will not only aid in building consensus on national issues but, for the first time in Division II, will encourage conversations about ground-level issues within each championship region.

The revised governance structure strengthens student-athlete representation and input in the decision-making process. How do these changes make the student-athletes’ contributions even more influential moving forward?

CHEDDIE WILMOTH, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS FOR INTERNAL OPERATIONS AND COMPLIANCE AND SENIOR WOMAN ADMINISTRATOR, SOUTHEASTERN OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY

Hearing and understanding the student-athlete voice is an important piece to our growth and development. The student-athletes are our customers who later become faculty, administrators and professionals in society. It is important for us to listen to educate ourselves and to provide guidance and direction to our student-athletes so they can grow.

WENDELL STATON, DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, GEORGIA COLLEGE

We have always been the leader when it comes to elevating the student-athlete voice, and our efforts in this area continue to serve as an example for the entire Association. Student-athlete representation and input is a clear overarching and non-negotiable trait of our division.
A lot of effort went into streamlining the Division II Manual, either by deregulating current bylaws, combining bylaws, and/or moving existing rules to the policy level. If you’re a compliance administrator at a Division II institution, what are you most happy about?

CHERIE WILMOTH, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS FOR INTERNAL OPERATIONS AND COMPLIANCE AND SENIOR WOMAN ADMINISTRATOR, SOUTHEASTERN OKLAHOMA STATE UNIVERSITY

Everything! It makes sense to deregulate bylaws that are outdated or not applicable to our division. Combining bylaws makes it easier for our practitioners and our members to understand and then educate our student-athletes and communities. Policy creates oversight but gives some autonomy for schools to work within their own framework and institutional governance systems.

COLLEEN PERRY KEITH, PRESIDENT, GOLDEY-BEACOM COLLEGE

The streamlining we accomplished will result in compliance officers having to consult fewer sites to obtain the information they need.

Among the recommendations was to keep the minimum of 10-sports for sports sponsorship but relax the rules governing how many sports are required per season. How does this benefit schools in how they choose what sports to offer, and will that help attract prospective members to the division and retain current members?

TRACI MURPHY, DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, DAEMEN UNIVERSITY

In today’s market, higher ed institutions are dealing with a unique time at which college-ready students are at an all-time low. Add the aftermath of a pandemic, and institutions need flexibility to do what is best for their mission, vision and financial stability. We were deliberate in retaining the minimum sport sponsorship rules. However, permitting an institution to be creative would perhaps relieve pressure to discontinue programs, provide the ability to offer sports that best suit their institution, conference or geography. Additionally, the concept could possibly reduce the number of institutions that may consider transitioning out of Division II. This concept was to help institutions maintain Division II status as well as entice institutions in other divisions to consider transitioning to Division II if it will help them to maintain intercollegiate sport opportunities and experiences.

CHRIS GRAHAM, COMMISSIONER, ROCKY MOUNTAIN ATHLETIC CONFERENCE

The uniqueness of Division II institutions across all eight championship regions requires functional solutions to maintain viability and success. Allowing for flexibility of sport sponsorship decisions is a genuine recognition of the varying resources, interests and geography of member institutions. Local decision making, with the consideration of conference interests and sponsorship, is a more attractive 21st-century model.
One of the hallmarks of Division II is the sense of collaboration when it comes to decisions that affect the membership. Did the rigor and scope of this review reflect that sense of unity among Division II members?

JACKSON STAVA, FORMER DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, SEATTLE PACIFIC UNIVERSITY

I have served on numerous committees, and this was by far the best experience. The camaraderie, engagement, and dedication of each individual on the committee is reflected in the outcomes. DII is different, and the work of this committee is one of the best representations of our collective engagement that I have ever witnessed.

KEVIN SCHRIVER, FACULTY ATHLETICS REPRESENTATIVE, SOUTHWEST BAPTIST UNIVERSITY

I have served on a number of committees and have always seen firsthand the cooperation among a very diverse group working toward the greater good. This experience was business as usual in that regard. Yes, we are competitive in our sports, but Division II has for the longest time held dear our relationships as people over the win-loss records or trophies won. Our business, as usual, has been what is good for the student-athlete is good for Division II, and therein lies the cornerstone of our unity.

While the Implementation Committee accomplished even more than might have been expected in such a short time, there are still some significant matters left on the table for the governance structure to tackle in the next year or two. What would you say are the three most important areas to be addressed?

MADELEINE McKENNA, FORMER VOLLEYBALL STUDENT-ATHLETE/DII SAAC MEMBER, CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA; CURRENT GRADUATE ASSISTANT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-PARKSIDE

An important area to address is the enforcement of the new constitutional duty for institutions to provide their coaches and athletics administrative staff with mental health education. Division II and the Association as a whole have taken important strides in identifying student-athlete mental health and well-being as a key principle and focus of our work. I would love for us to find a way to highlight this education as something every campus needs to be doing, but in a way that doesn’t just create another box to check. Also, this mental health education will not only better equip our athletics departments to support student-athlete mental health but also give them the skills and resources to support their own mental health. College athletics can be incredibly demanding, so the more we can foster awareness and decrease the stigma, the better the outcomes will be across every level of our athletics departments and campus communities.

CHRIS COLVIN, COMMISSIONER, CONFERENCE CAROLINAS

The potential reconfigured championships structure. The committee’s recommendation did not abandon regionalization but presented concepts that could significantly enhance the championship experience by restructuring bracketing concepts and reducing first-round conference matchups. In addition, if the division can follow through on the change to sponsorship minimums to start a championship, it could significantly impact membership with additional championships conducted only at the Division II level.

WENDELL STATON, DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, GEORGIA COLLEGE

Regionalization. It has been a wonderful hallmark of our division, but if we can tweak it just a bit it will be even better.
This was one of the most — if not the most — significant reviews the division has undertaken since its creation in 1973. Looking ahead, what does the division need to do to retain the benefits gained through this review?

CHRIS COLVIN, COMMISSIONER, CONFERENCE CAROLINAS

I don’t think mitigating the need for anything similar is necessary. In fact, I think that a committee like this every five years or so might be a good thing. There were a lot of ideas and concepts generated that will now be vetted by the governance structure. That is a good thing. This committee gave specific committees (i.e., Championships, Membership) the kick start to look at significant improvements that may not have risen to the top of an already crowded regular agenda.

JACKSON STAVA, FORMER DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, SEATTLE PACIFIC UNIVERSITY

We must now live out the robust and ambitious desire to continue to have DII as a leader in college athletics. Reviews go only as far as the people who implement them. It is now our job to make sure that this work, done first and foremost to protect and develop students, is central to all of our missions as DII members.

What’s your one walkout message after having participated in this exercise?

DEBBIE FORD, CHANCELLOR, UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-PARKSIDE

Thanks to the Division II leadership and team for guiding the Implementation Committee and for positioning us to think big about the future of Division II. I am so proud of the work we completed together and knowing we placed students at the center of our decision making.

MADELEINE McKENNA, FORMER VOLLEYBALL STUDENT-ATHLETE/DII SAAC MEMBER, CALIFORNIA UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA; CURRENT GRADUATE ASSISTANT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-PARKSIDE

The rigor and scope of this review absolutely reflected the deeply ingrained sense of unity and collaboration within Division II. In both of our in-person meetings, the energy in the room was electric. To sit and be surrounded by people from across the DII membership, all representing different institutions, different conferences, private or public schools, different geographic locations, and unique resources, and to feel the united drive to work together and achieve something that will best serve all of our student-athletes and the diverse interests of the membership is something I’ll never forget.

JACKSON STAVA, FORMER DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS, SEATTLE PACIFIC UNIVERSITY

If anyone has ever questioned the positivity, creativity, or passion of Division II administrators, NCAA staff, or student-athletes, I wish they could have been a fly on the wall for these meetings, because this group clearly showed in word and in action what makes DII great!
