

NCAA Division I Board of Directors Strategic Areas of Emphasis 2018-2023

Background.

Role of presidential leadership in Division I governance.

The Division I Board of Directors provides the strategic direction and oversight for the Division I collegiate model. With the Board's 2016-2018 strategic plan nearing completion, it is now time to turn attention to identifying the future areas of emphasis for 2018-2023. It is important that the Division I Board, assisted by the Presidential Forum, provide leadership and direction for the division and for the Association as a whole, and the development of Division I strategic areas of emphasis will help create the necessary framework by which the broader collegiate model of sport can be advanced.

Division I membership helps inform strategic areas.

The Board has been aided in this process by the regular feedback from key NCAA governance groups, including the Presidential Forum, NCAA Division I Council, NCAA Division I Student-Athlete Advisory Committee and NCAA Division I Strategic Vision and Planning Committee. Broader outreach to the Division I membership has also occurred. The end result reflects a shared commitment to address these areas to advance Division I.

Complementary planning efforts underway.

It is important to note that several other strategic planning efforts underway that serve to complement this effort.

The NCAA Board of Governors has just begun its Association-wide strategic planning process, intended to inform areas with Association-wide impact.

The Division I Council, NCAA Division I Committee on Academics, Division I Student-Athlete Advisory Committee and other governance entities are also identifying other specific areas for review in their respective areas that are complementary to the strategic areas identified by the Board while advancing more operational and tactical goals.

Reaffirming the role of intercollegiate athletics in the educational experience.

The Division I Board's work in developing these strategic areas of emphasis has been greatly enhanced and informed by the Presidential Forum's Charting the Course report. This report represents an unprecedented and holistic examination intended to advance the optimal state of student-athlete development and preparation for life.

The Board and Forum are strongly committed to the collegiate model of athletics that has the following characteristics: promises that participation in college sports enriches the entire postsecondary educational experience for student-athletes; reaffirms that athletics participation is an integral component of that experience rather than an ancillary or extracurricular endeavor; and reinforces that the benefits of that participation – the teamwork, the self-discipline, the camaraderie, the collaboration with persons of varied backgrounds to achieve a common goal – serve student-athletes not only during their time in competition, but also well after they have earned their diplomas.

There is also agreement that the intercollegiate athletics experience adds unique educational value for student-athletes. The attributes inherent in athletics participation – the work ethic, leadership, collaboration/teamwork, time management, self-discipline, partnering with teammates from diverse backgrounds and cultures – offer as much of a high-impact “classroom” for learning as other aspects of education such as lab work, study abroad programs and internships. Student-athletes learn valuable life lessons as part of their intercollegiate athletics experience, and NCAA research shows that those lessons position student-athletes for success in life well beyond their college years.

The continuum of the student-athlete experience – from college recruitment through the college years to the post-college environment – is such that expectations and habits developed along the way can positively or negatively affect student-athletes’ well-being and skill development at all stages of their experience; that engagement in intercollegiate athletics has the potential of adding significant value to the student-athletes’ well-being and skill development when done properly, and that the student-athlete experience at its core is one that builds on students’ experience generally, regardless of their “elite athletic status” at any point along the continuum.

The 2018- 2023 Strategic Areas of Emphasis for Division I.
