

Division I Men's and Women's Basketball Degree Completion Assistance

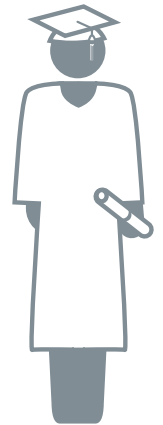

New NCAA legislation requires all member schools to provide degree completion assistance for former men's and women's basketball student-athletes, effective Aug. 1, 2019.

Division I schools that provide athletics aid shall provide, at a minimum, tuition, fees and books.

Former Division I men's and women's basketball student-athletes may be eligible for financial assistance to complete their first degree if they:

- ✓ Departed the institution and would have been academically eligible to compete had they returned (met all NCAA progress-toward-degree requirements);
- ✓ Departed the institution within the last 10 years;
- ✓ Received athletics aid while previously enrolled;
- ✓ Exhausted other degree completion funding options (e.g., NBA Tuition Reimbursement);
- ✓ Previously enrolled full-time for at least two years;
- ✓ Meet school's admissions and financial aid requirements; and
- ✓ Have not attended another school full-time since departure.

FUNDING

Division I schools that provide athletics aid are required, as a condition and obligation of membership, to fund degree completion to former men's and women's basketball student-athletes.

The Former Student-Athlete Degree Achievement Program was established for Limited Resource Institutions defined as such by the NCAA Division I Academic Performance Program within the past five years.

For more information, visit ncaa.org/former-student-athlete-degree-achievement